

UNION.
Then to glory! loyal North!
Send your hosts of freedom forth;
Strong in majority of right,
Fervent in their power and might—
Not for pleasure but for war,
Not for glory but for law;
Fling the standard of Union high,
"Union" for their battle cry!

Believe London shall pass and quell,
Treason's banner from grow pale,
When the onward march they see
Of the Northern "chivalry!"
Knights who never struck a blow,
At a word and starting free,
But who dare to do and die,
"Union" for their battle cry!

Never while the Western sun
Sheds the glow of Washington,
Shall a head of traitors dare
Plant their rebel standard there!
Loyal hearts shall gather round
Guard from shades the hallowed ground,
"Till across the land and sky,
Sounds our Union battle cry!

Never shall the note of peace
Bid the din of warfare cease,
Till the Stars and Stripes once more,
Frolics from shore to shore,
"Till our land again shall claim,
From the world her spotless name,
And North and South the cry shall be,
"Union, Peace and Liberty!"

FISH AND FISH-BREEDING.

Having passed a few days of my summer vacation from business, in wading up and down the cold, clear streams of the White Mountains, enticed by all sorts of deceitful contrivances, the beautiful trout from their shady retreats under the dark rocks, and having had success sufficient to supply the table, so that I have pretty satisfactory notions of the value of that kind of food, it is natural that my thoughts should still linger upon the subject. Once, in Switzerland, near the mountains, where I spent a Sabbath, our party were asked if we should like some trout for dinner, and upon our affirmative reply, a girl of the house went down to a spring where was a cask, from which she took living trout sufficient for our supply. We were told that these were fish recently taken from the streams and kept alive for occasional use.

Now, what a luxury would it be in the country, where a variety of food is not always to be had, if we could go to our fish-pond, as we go to our poultry-yard, and take out a goodly dish for our family or newly arrived friend.

FISH-BREEDING IN PONDS.

Although we have lost our fish, mostly from our public ponds and streams, we may, many of us, with little trouble or cost, supply ourselves and neighbors through the use of private fish-ponds, either natural or artificial. Neither law nor good neighborhood gives any excuse for interference with small ponds upon one's own land. The land-owner is an exclusive owner of his pond, as of his barn, and his fish are as securely protected as his cattle.

There is not room in a single article, to do much more than to give some general hints, showing the principles to be regarded in fish-breeding, and referring to some instances of successful experiment. In Germany, about a hundred years ago, one Jacob published some interesting accounts of his method of breeding trout by artificial impregnation of their ova or eggs.

About thirty years ago, a series of very accurate and scientific observations was published in Scotland, upon the habits of fish at the season of spawning, which is the material matter in artificial propagation. In France, about 1848, the attention of the government was attracted to the subject, and as the emperor in that thoroughly governed country undertakes to regulate everything, an appropriation was made, and an institution established for hatching, rearing and transporting fish. I have not found access to any reports of the success of those efforts.

In New Haven, Conn., an experiment has been going on for about five years, in stocking the Salmon Lake, which is about three miles in length, with the lake trout and white fish, from Lake Ontario, which is said to be progressing satisfactorily. In 1823-4, the black bass of the lakes was introduced into Waramaug Lake, in Litchfield County, Conn., and more recently into other lakes in the same state, and the report of their increase in number and size is wonderful. "They have in that lake," says Mr. Beeman, of Litchfield, "multiplied very generously. Their growth is estimated to be about one pound a year, and they have frequently been caught weighing five pounds and upwards. There were less than one hundred bass originally placed in Waramaug Lake; there are now probably millions, and they appear to propagate and flourish better than any other fish in the waters of that lake."—New England Farmer.

METROPOLITAN COMPANY'S

Universal Clothes Wringer,

It will pay for itself by saving the clothes. It thoroughly presses out the water from the clothes about three times as quick as they can be wrung by hand. It prevents lame wrists, lame backs, and lame sides. It will wring clothes out of boiling hot or ice cold water. It leaves the clothes in excellent condition to dry quickly. It removes the dread of washing day, and is to the laundry what the sewing machine is to the nursery. It will wring anything, from a lace collar to a bed spread.

WISWALA'S IMPROVED

WASHING MACHINE.

PATENTED JUNE 7, 1859.

The Greatest Labor-Saving Machine ever Invented.

Read the testimony and judge for yourselves.

The following certificate, signed by all the County Officers for the County of Lamoille, and all the Town Officers and Business Men of Hydepark, where this Machine was invented, will show in what respect it is held in home, where it has been put in use.

Certificate:

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lamoille County, Vt., hereby certify that we have used in our families, more or less, for about five months last past, a Washing Machine, patented by Mr. Samuel Wiswala, of Hydepark. We consider it a valuable machine, both in saving labor and avoiding the usual wear and tear of clothing. It will cleanse all articles of ordinary use by the simple motion of the Machine, in which is no pounding or hard friction to injure the articles to be cleaned. The Machine will do such work with much less labor and much less injury to the clothes than the ordinary way of rubbing on a wash-board. Very dirty articles, like shirt collars and wristbands, may require some scrubbing, but the Machine is so arranged that it can be done in it as conveniently as with a common tub and board. For scrubbing and rinsing, the machine is very valuable. It will not injure the finest muslin fabric, while it will cleanse bed quilts, heavy blankets, and even carpets more thoroughly than can be done by hand. We consider it a great improvement on every kind of Washing Machine we have ever known, and its operation gives such universal satisfaction wherever it has been tried, we think it must soon come into very general use.

Hydepark, Vt., June 31, 1862.

THE subscribers offer the above Machine for sale on the following terms: Any one wishing to purchase can take a machine one month on trial; at the end of the month he can return the machine, unaltered, or pay the price of it, as he chooses.
